NATIONAL INTEGRITY 2017

Building the public/private alliance

Transparency International Australia's 1st biennial conference comes to you as part of a unique opportunity – a fresh assessment of Australia's National Integrity Systems, applying lessons learned from close to 100 countries all around the world. Over the next two years, an Australian Research Council-funded team, led by Griffith University's Centre for Governance & Public Policy will work with government, business and civil society to identify the key strengths, gaps, opportunities and solutions for our national approaches to preventing, limiting and combating corruption.

Helping set the agenda, key topics for the conference include

- How we organise to suppress and prevent corruption more systematically and sustainably across our institutions
- How we can better measure our corruption risks/challenges
- What are the different – and best – options for constituting and coordinating our integrity and anti-corruption agencies, including their roles, powers and independence
- How can Open Government principles and reforms best contribute to ensuring corruption-free, high integrity governance
- How can business contribute, play its part and lead the way with best-practice anti-corruption approaches.

Join us, share experience, and find out more about how you and your organisation can partner in this expanding alliance.
